General Information

Overview

This unit is designed to equip first-term international undergraduate students with essential skills in academic integrity, assignment writing and digital literacy. Students will learn about ethical academic practices, how to use digital tools effectively for research and communication, and how to navigate the university's digital landscape. The unit integrates theoretical knowledge with practical skills through engaging and interactive activities, including using generative AI tools and traditional research methods.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from SUTE

Feedback

Students responded very positively to the first offering of the unit, particularly the clear structure, useful learning materials, assessments, feedback, and support provided throughout the term.

Recommendation

Continue providing a clear, supportive and engaging learning experience, with regularly updated learning materials and activities. The unit will continue to incorporate relevant digital technologies and contemporary examples, particularly in areas such as academic integrity, digital literacy, academic writing, and the responsible and ethical use of Generative Artificial Intelligence (GenAI).
