General Information

Overview

What makes a great TED talk or a great crowdfunding campaign and how do you write a winning grant application? How do you sell an innovation to investors who are worried about market resistance to new ideas? How do you sell an "idea" to an audience, if 'all' you want them to invest is enthusiasm and time rather than money? These are some of the questions that entrepreneurs and social innovators face in doing their work, and this unit will take you into the 'art' and 'science' of pitching, including how to craft a message that takes into account resistance, using all the senses to gain maximum engagement, and using social media not just to get the message out, but to improve the message. Pitching and grant writing are key skills of the social innovator and the entrepreneur. You will also be introduced to current thinking on crowdfunding and crowd-sourcing, drawing on the social psychology of persuasion, as well as marketing science, to hone messages that elicit action.

Assessment Tasks

1 Grant Application

Assessment Type

Practical Assessment

Task Description

Students will be expected to, with guidance, identify a funding target for this assignment. This choice of grant-giving source will require prior approval from the unit co-ordinator (by the end of Week 4).

They will then be expected to complete the grant application to the point of submission. They are not expected to submit the application (unless they are planning to go through with the project that is the subject of the grant application). The grant application can be for either a social innovation, social enterprise, community project, a research project or a creative project. If the student is unable to identify a suitable target grant, they will be guided by the unit coordinator to a current or previous grant round.

The requirements will depend at least in part on the nature of the grant application process. If the grant application process is too onerous to be conducted reasonably as 50% of a undergraduate unit assessment, then the unit co-ordinator, in consultation with the student, may reduce the elements required to complete the 'submission'. It is expected, as a rough guide, that students will be expected to write 2-3000 words as part of the grant application process and complete a budget plan.

Students should provide a separate document in their submission that pastes verbatim (here plagiarism is NOT an issue) what the assessment criteria given by the grant-giving body for the grant are. This aspect of your submission does not add to the overall word count.

See the Assessment Criteria for further guidance.

Assessment Criteria

Overall, careful preparation, meticulous attention to detail, and evidence that you understand how your application will be reviewed (i.e. you have done research of the grant-giving body) are important in building a good grant application. Note that it is expected that students will not realistically be able to address all elements of the grant-giving body's application process. It is acceptable to 'make up' elements of your application (for example your experience, collaborating bodies) but these 'made up' elements should be realistic, not fanciful. Your grant application will be judged against the following criteria:

Overall Impact (30%)

This criterion relates to the impact or value of the project in terms of what the grant-giving body is looking for--and needs to be understood in conjunction with the grant-giving body's own criteria. This criteria also relates to elements such as significance, innovation or creativity if these elements are appropriate to the grant-giving body's criteria.

Approach (30%)

Does the application persuasively make a case for funding, using evidence that is appropriate to the application? Does it adequately explain (for the grant assessors) included concepts, approaches or methodologies, instrumentation, or intervention? Does the application suggest that the applicant is capable (in conjunction with the collaborators and context of the applicant) to complete the project? If the project has ethical implications, have these elements been recognised and addressed appropriately?

Quality (40%)

Is the application clearly, logically and efficiently laid out (e.g, sequenced correctly and without unnecessary repetition) in making its case? Is the application free of significant errors, including in the budget lay out, and are all elements required (as agreed previously with the unit coordinator) present? If evidence is presented, is this evidence clearly presented and linked to a source in a manner that enables the grant assessor to check that source?

Note that late penalties of 5% of the available marks per day or part thereof will be deducted for late submissions (without an approved extension).

2 The pitch

Assessment Type

Presentation

Task Description

This project requires the student to prepare and deliver a persuasive pitch related to gaining support or funding for either a social innovation or social enterprise (not for a fully commercial idea or enterprise). A pitch is not judged on its length, but a good pitch should make use of the time available efficiently, packing information in that is sufficiently clear, sufficiently plausible or backed by evidence, and sufficiently well structured that it can appeal to the target audience. This assessment requires you to produce a pitch in video form that is a maximum of 15 minutes in length. A few guidelines: there should be no political agenda, no religious agenda, and not about meta-physics or spiritualism. The pitch, regardless of the content, should be founded on good science and good evidence--not be illogical, obscure or clouded in mystery. Further technical details will be explained on the Moodle site.

Assessment Due Date

Week 12 Thursday (6 June 2019) 11:00 pm AEST

Return Date to Students

Exam Week Monday (17 June 2019)

Results will be released formally as part of certification of grades.

Weighting

50%

Assessment Criteria

Engagement (30%)

Is the pitch interesting, compelling, amusing or otherwise engaging for its intended audience? Does the speaker make use of audio-visual opportunities, for example by including hand movements or multi-media elements to supplement and strengthen the message and engage the senses? Does the pitch include a compelling call to action, with a clear and realistic pathway for the intended audience to respond?

Believability (30%)

Does the pitch use the evidence included in a clear and believable way? Does the content address doubts or weaknesses that an intelligent and informed judge of the content might identify?

Quality (30%)

Is the pitch developed with good pace and clarity, lack of clutter, clear and logical sequencing? Is there evidence that the presenter practiced the presentation so as to obtain optimal quality both in terms of delivery and recording? Is there evidence the producer/presenter attempted to reasonably eliminate errors, without creating a sense that the end-product is so over-produced or over-practiced as to be inauthentic?

Innovation (10%)

Is there something new, fresh, surprising, creative about your presentation? This can be in the ideas presented, the examples given, or elements of the delivery.

Note that late penalties of 5% of the available marks per day or part thereof will be deducted for late submissions (without an approved extension).

Academic Integrity Statement

As a CQUniversity student you are expected to act honestly in all aspects of your academic work.

Any assessable work undertaken or submitted for review or assessment must be your own work. Assessable work is any type of work you do to meet the assessment requirements in the unit, including draft work submitted for review and feedback and final work to be assessed.

When you use the ideas, words or data of others in your assessment, you must thoroughly and clearly acknowledge the source of this information by using the correct referencing style for your unit. Using others' work without proper acknowledgement may be considered a form of intellectual dishonesty.

Participating honestly, respectfully, responsibly, and fairly in your university study ensures the CQUniversity qualification you earn will be valued as a true indication of your individual academic achievement and will continue to receive the respect and recognition it deserves.

As a student, you are responsible for reading and following CQUniversity's policies, including the Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure. This policy sets out CQUniversity's expectations of you to act with integrity, examples of academic integrity breaches to avoid, the processes used to address alleged breaches of academic integrity, and potential penalties.

What is a breach of academic integrity?

A breach of academic integrity includes but is not limited to plagiarism, self-plagiarism, collusion, cheating, contract cheating, and academic misconduct. The Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure defines what these terms mean and gives examples.

Why is academic integrity important?

A breach of academic integrity may result in one or more penalties, including suspension or even expulsion from the University. It can also have negative implications for student visas and future enrolment at CQUniversity or elsewhere. Students who engage in contract cheating also risk being blackmailed by contract cheating services.

Where can I get assistance?

For academic advice and guidance, the Academic Learning Centre \(ALC\) can support you in becoming confident in completing assessments with integrity and of high standard.

What can you do to act with integrity?

Be Honest

If your assessment task is done by someone else, it would be dishonest of you to claim it as your own

Seek Help

If you are not sure about how to cite or reference in essays, reports etc, then seek help from your lecturer, the library or the Academic Learning Centre (ALC)

Produce Original Work

Originality comes from your ability to read widely, think critically, and apply your gained knowledge to address a question or problem
