General Information

Overview

This unit aims to provide you with a range of contemporary perspectives on Australian and international media industries. It analyses political and social contexts, important issues such as media ownership and diversity, courses and independence, as well as identifying professional and technological changes in media practices and organisations. The unit encourages an understanding of the institutions and industries in which media practitioners work and demonstrates how journalists work outside established news organisations through social journalism. As an important part of journalistic practice, the unit also promotes research, verification and writing skills (both in an online and offline context) in order to further your training and awareness.

Schedule

Media Industries in the Digital Era - 15 Jul 2019

Module/Topic	Chapter	Events and Submissions/Topic
--------------	---------	------------------------------

Understanding how the media works and how society interacts with and builds on the information portrayed in media is essential. The way we consume news and media has evolved, and the digital era has changed journalism, that much is for sure. But how does this affect journalism's role in society? Is journalism still a powerful force in culture? What does this mean for you as a future journalist?

Bainbridge et.al Chapter 1: The Public Sphere
Bainbridge et. al Chapter 4: The Digital and Social Media Environment

News Values in a Changing World - 22 Jul 2019

Module/Topic	Chapter	Events and Submissions/Topic
Now that we have been introduced to media industries and how they contribute to society via the mediasphere, we're taking a closer look at how news operates - from the state of modern journalism to the way that news has value and how news choices influence an audience. We will also start looking at the concept of Social Journalism as it relates to modern journalism practice, including how developments such as social media, paywalls and video are impacting the industry's relevance and effectiveness.	Hirst Prologue Hirst Chapter 5: Can Journalism Be Saved? Bainbridge et. al Chapter 12: News Values and News Culture in a Changing World

The Making of the News - 29 Jul 2019

Module/Topic	Chapter	Events and Submissions/Topic
After refreshing our understanding of news values, this week we take a closer look at the nitty-gritty of news - writing, language, and editing. A good journalist needs a mastery of the English language - so this week we look at the technical aspects of writing for the news across all media. We also look at the importance of style, and how audiences need to differentiate news and advertising through style.	Bainbridge Chapter 14: The Elements of Writing Bainbridge Chapter 15: Subediting, News Language and Convention

Media, Meaning and Influence - 05 Aug 2019

Module/Topic	Chapter	Events and Submissions/Topic
Every bit of media that we consume has some kind of meaning. Creators of media industries can prejudice the way that we interpret that meaning, but ultimately a person's beliefs, education and societal position will impact the way that meaning is interpreted. As we are learning about media industries in this unit, we are moving beyond simply knowing what each industry does to thinking about why, and how this influences us. The key to thinking this way is critical analysis and performing that analysis without any preconceptions.	Bainbridge Chapter 9: Media Texts Bainbridge Chapter 10: Audiences and Representations

Introducing Social Journalism - 12 Aug 2019

--------------	---------	------------------------------

We briefly introduced the concept of social journalism in Week 2, but the next three modules will form an intensive look into the topic, focusing on how social journalism impacts media industries and public participation in journalism. We now begin to focus more on readings from the Hirst textbook within the context of examining media industries, media literacy and the future of journalism.

Writing for Social Journalism - 26 Aug 2019

--------------	---------	------------------------------

After looking at the 'why' of social journalism before Break Week, this week we dive right into the 'how' and 'what': looking at platforms, writing styles and best-practice examples from around the globe.

Even if you are a 'digital native' and have had a Facebook account since before you could walk, this is no reason to assume that you understand the platform from a journalistic perspective. The playing field is constantly evolving as platforms improve and develop their offering – what works now may not work in 6 months' time!

Hirst Chapter 10: How to Do Social Journalism
Hirst Chapter 11: Writing Social Journalism

Getting it Right - 02 Sep 2019

--------------	---------	------------------------------

Now that we've covered the practical parts of social journalism, it's time to stop for a minute and consider the responsibilities that you carry as a social journalist.

Have you ever read a statement on social media and believed it or shared it without giving it a second thought? Have you then had someone (often embarrassingly) point out to you how untrue the original statement was? As humans, we don't like to be proven wrong, so in social journalism (or in any journalism practice!) it's important to be 100% sure of the veracity of your information before you publish.

Hirst Chapter 9: Research and Verification

Ethics in Media Industries - 09 Sep 2019

--------------	---------	------------------------------

For any communications professional, telling the truth and acting honestly is important. But as creators of news, journalists have a clear responsibility to act in an ethical manner. People take what they see on 'the news' as fact, so ethical researching, writing and reporting are of great importance. While you have likely already covered ethics in previous units, this week we look at several new and emerging ethical issues for journalists around digital and global media ethics.

Hirst Chapter 8: The Ethical and Legal Principles of Social Journalism
Bainbridge et. al Chapter 17 – Ethics in Communication

Law in Media Industries - 16 Sep 2019

Module/Topic	Chapter	Events and Submissions/Topic
Journalists have a responsibility to obey the law. But with a changing digital media landscape, the legal landscape is changing as well, both in Australia and globally. The legal considerations we will cover this week have far-reaching effects – from how you conduct yourself on social media even now, to copyright and confidentiality.	Bainbridge et. al Chapter 18: Media Practice, Industry Change and the Law	Media Coverage and Justification Due: Week 9 Friday (20 Sept 2019) 6:00 pm AEST

Media Convergence - 23 Sep 2019

Module/Topic	Chapter	Events and Submissions/Topic
Convergence is an important topic to round out this unit, as we have seen a change in relationships and a blurring of lines between different media in our digital age. When we talk about convergence, we are discussing the interdependence of media industries both in Australia and the globe at large. Convergence is very relevant in Australia, particularly given the social journalism concepts that we have been discussing. News has taken on a new, convergent form, and this week we look at how social journalism is a part of professional journalism - and vice versa.	Hirst Chapter 12: The Future of Journalism is Already Here Bainbridge et. al Chapter 19: Convergence

Media Industries and Social Change - 30 Sep 2019

Module/Topic	Chapter	Events and Submissions/Topic
Postmodernity is about taking an alternative perspective and breaking with tradition. While the term 'postmodernity' might be an intimidating word, it comes down to being able to think outside the box and imagine a better future. In this unit, we've seen how media industries have changed over the past decades. Now we look to the future and examine how we can challenge the traditions of media industries for a better world and social change.	Bainbridge et. al Chapter 20: Postmodernity

Review - 07 Oct 2019

Module/Topic	Chapter	Events and Submissions/Topic

Assessment Tasks

1 Report and Discussion

Assessment Type

Group Discussion

Task Description

In this assessment, you will analyse how the news is made and how editorial choices shape the content that audiences receive, believe, and ultimately even act on.

Your Task

Find one story that was covered by broadcast news (TV or radio), a newspaper, and an online news site. If you can find it, also include the original media release for a deeper comparison.

In your report, you will summarise the story and then compare the coverage of this story across the three different media channels, examining:

- Did the news values change?
- Did the audience and targeting of the story change?
- Was the story covered internationally? Why or why not?
- Were the key messages different?
- How did the story change across different media?
- Was any 'important' information left out?

Discussion

You will post your choice of story to the Assessment 1 Discussion Forum on Moodle by the end of week 4, with a short outline of why you have chosen to examine this story. You will also provide feedback on at least two other students' posts by the time you submit your assessment.

Referencing and Format

In explaining and deconstructing editorial choices, you will use at least four (4) academic sources, referenced in the APA format. The report will be presented as an academic report, with examples of format available on Moodle. Include your original articles (where possible) as an Appendix to the report.

Your report will be submitted via Moodle as a Word document in Week 5, with a word count between 1500-2000 words.

Assessment Due Date

Week 5 Friday (16 Aug 2019) 5:00 pm AEST

2 Media Coverage and Justification

Assessment Type

Written Assessment

Task Description

This assessment incorporates current affairs, the mediasphere and the advent of social media, requiring students to act as social journalists and interact with the mediasphere and different forms of media.

Your Task

You are the social journalist, tasked with finding a locally developing newsworthy story and covering it through two of the following media channels:

- An Instagram story (5+ individual posts)
- A Facebook Live video (2 minutes or more)
- A series of Tweets (5+ Tweets)
- A Snapchat story (5+ individual posts)
- A series of captioned photos (3+ photos, of publishable quality)
- A series of text messages (5+ messages, as you might send to a journalist)
- A 'call in' to a radio show

Your two media channels may cover the story during the same point in time, or one may be a follow-up. If you are having trouble finding a newsworthy story, turn to your local Council meeting, shopping centre noticeboard or even local Facebook groups.

Once you have captured your story through two of the above channels, you will present your story and a justification of your media choices via a PowerPoint presentation. The presentation will have your story embedded (via video or screenshots), and then address the following justification questions:

- What was your approach to finding and covering the story?
- How did you apply the principles of social journalism?
- Which news values informed your choices?
- How did your choice of media impact the coverage you were able to provide? Was this appropriate?
- What principles of responsible social journalism needed to be observed?

Your justification should cover approximately 250 words on each of these headings. Your PowerPoint justification slides will be in a dot point format with recorded voiceover. You will need to incorporate at least five (5) academic sources and show evidence of research into news values, media industries and modern journalistic practices. Your justification should be accompanied by referencing in the APA style, with a reference list included at the end of your PowerPoint presentation.

Assessment Due Date

Week 9 Friday (20 Sept 2019) 6:00 pm AEST

3 Op-Ed and Justification

Assessment Type

Written Assessment

Task Description

This assessment focuses on analysing how the media shapes our conversations, given the rise of opinion-based writing, fake news and social journalism.

Part A: Alternative Op-Eds

Your task is to identify an opinion editorial (op-ed) piece in the media (broadcast, online or newspaper). An op-ed is a piece of writing which articulates a personal opinion, rather than the balanced reporting of a journalistic piece.

In response to the op-ed, you will craft a reply piece presenting an alternative view, while maintaining the same style as the original piece.

Following your alternative response, you will craft a second opinion piece, finding a different angle again to the first two pieces.

Your two response op-eds will each be 500 words long, for a total of 1,000 words in Part A. Any references in the body of the op-ed (optional, but required if you are referencing facts, statistics or another author's work) must be in the APA style, with a reference list specific to Part A. Include the original op-ed as an Appendix to Part A.

Part B: Justification

In addition to this response, you will write a 1,200 – 1,500 word justification of your choices, including (but not limited to):

- Why you chose the original piece
- Your adopted writing styles
- What medium would be most appropriate for your responses
- Your choice of alternative angles and how this theoretically shapes the conversation
- How your responses might influence the audience's perspective
- Any ethical or legal considerations in your responses
- Whether or not your pieces would be published by the same outlet as the original

Your justification will be written as a third-person academic piece of writing, similar to an essay with an introduction, discussion/argument and conclusion. You will need to incorporate academic sources and show evidence of research into news values, media industries and modern journalistic practices. Your research should be accompanied by referencing in the APA style, with a reference list specific to Part B.

Part C: Editing

It is expected that you will spend a significant amount of time editing your op-ed for style, language and readability. An editing checklist will help you with this, and you will submit your completed editing checklist along with the final assignment.

Format

Part A of the assignment should be presented with appropriate headings. Part B will follow the Academic Essay format, and Part C can be pasted into the final Word document and completed.

All three parts will be submitted together as a single Word document and uploaded to Moodle on the due date.

Assessment Due Date

Review/Exam Week Friday (18 Oct 2019) 6:00 pm AEST

Submit via Moodle in Review/Exam week.

Return Date to Students

Exam Week Friday (25 Oct 2019)

Assignments will be returned within two weeks of on-time submission.

Weighting

45%

Assessment Criteria

A detailed assessment criteria is available on Moodle.

You will be assessed as per the criteria, which covers:

- Your use of journalistic writing styles and understanding of news values
- Your writing standard and self-editing standard, in line with the editing checklist
- The depth of your justification, including all elements outlined in the task
- The use of credible academic sources to support your justification

Academic Integrity Statement

As a CQUniversity student you are expected to act honestly in all aspects of your academic work.

Any assessable work undertaken or submitted for review or assessment must be your own work. Assessable work is any type of work you do to meet the assessment requirements in the unit, including draft work submitted for review and feedback and final work to be assessed.

When you use the ideas, words or data of others in your assessment, you must thoroughly and clearly acknowledge the source of this information by using the correct referencing style for your unit. Using others' work without proper acknowledgement may be considered a form of intellectual dishonesty.

Participating honestly, respectfully, responsibly, and fairly in your university study ensures the CQUniversity qualification you earn will be valued as a true indication of your individual academic achievement and will continue to receive the respect and recognition it deserves.

As a student, you are responsible for reading and following CQUniversity's policies, including the Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure. This policy sets out CQUniversity's expectations of you to act with integrity, examples of academic integrity breaches to avoid, the processes used to address alleged breaches of academic integrity, and potential penalties.

What is a breach of academic integrity?

A breach of academic integrity includes but is not limited to plagiarism, self-plagiarism, collusion, cheating, contract cheating, and academic misconduct. The Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure defines what these terms mean and gives examples.

Why is academic integrity important?

A breach of academic integrity may result in one or more penalties, including suspension or even expulsion from the University. It can also have negative implications for student visas and future enrolment at CQUniversity or elsewhere. Students who engage in contract cheating also risk being blackmailed by contract cheating services.

Where can I get assistance?

For academic advice and guidance, the Academic Learning Centre \(ALC\) can support you in becoming confident in completing assessments with integrity and of high standard.

What can you do to act with integrity?

Be Honest

If your assessment task is done by someone else, it would be dishonest of you to claim it as your own

Seek Help

If you are not sure about how to cite or reference in essays, reports etc, then seek help from your lecturer, the library or the Academic Learning Centre (ALC)

Produce Original Work

Originality comes from your ability to read widely, think critically, and apply your gained knowledge to address a question or problem
