General Information

Overview

This foundation unit will introduce you to core concepts in the field of domestic and family violence practice including the influence of socio-political structures, particularly as they impact on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. There is a specific focus on investigating terminology issues and the prevailing understanding of domestic and family violence at state, national and global levels. Critical use is made of contemporary research, and practice and policy documents that address domestic and family violence (including intimate partner violence and the abuse of children, older persons, parents, siblings and animals). You will explore legal and safety considerations that arise from working in this context and consider ethical, professional and self-management implications for practice.

Assessment Tasks

1 Intersectionality Theory

Assessment Type

Portfolio

Task Description

1000 words

For this portfolio activity, you are asked to identify and unpack the key features of the theoretical perspective of Intersectionality as it relates to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander victim-survivor experiences of Domestic and Family Violence (DFV) and service delivery in this area. NOTE: family violence is a preferred term amongst Indigenous communities. You should review and analyse national and international theoretical and empirical evidence to address where the theory's origins are situated and more broadly how it relates to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander victim-survivors' experiences in the Australian context.

A minimum of six academic references (i.e. journal articles) published 2010 or later are required for this assessment piece. In addition, you may draw on Australian statistics from government websites (e.g. Australian Bureau of Statistics, Australian Institute of Health and Welfare).

The following points should be embedded in your assignment:

- Key features and origins of this theoretical perspective in relation to DFV
- How this theoretical perspective is applied specifically to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander victim-survivors of family violence
- Illustrative examples explaining service delivery considerations

The assignment should be presented in essay format using Times News Roman 12 point font with 1.5 spacing. You should provide a brief introduction to the topic, a discussion of the origins and features of the theory, the theory's relevance to understanding Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander victim-survivors of family violence, and relevance to service delivery and a conclusion (no new information and no citations in the conclusion) that summarises the key points and provides suggestions for future directions.

2 PowerPoint Presentation

Assessment Type

Portfolio

Task Description

750 words in notes pages (additional words allowed on PowerPoint slides)

Domestic and Family Violence (DFV) covers a range of different types of abuse and victim-offender relationships. These include 'child abuse'; 'sibling abuse'; and 'elder abuse'. You are asked to select ONE of these three types of violence and to develop a PowerPoint presentation that highlights the following aspects for a non-specialist community audience.

The following topics should be covered in your presentation:

Outline – provide an outline/overview of your presentation

Definition – provide a definition of the chosen type of DFV, explain the victim-offender relationship

State legislation – outline your relevant State legislation, discuss whether it is relevant to your chosen type of DFV, discuss the limitations of that legislation in terms of capturing your chosen type of DFV

Prevalence data – provide prevalence information AND critically examine the data challenges associated with identifying prevalence rates (i.e. discuss the difficulties in identifying prevalence rates; discuss the difference between 'incidence rates' and 'prevalence rates'; give illustrative examples)

Impact – articulate the nature and extent of the impact (short-term and long-term) of the chosen type of DFV (e.g. physical wellbeing, safety of children, financial stability, social and emotional wellbeing)

Guidelines for the assessment:

- Your presentation should be between eight and 10 slides in length (without the title page and end-text references)
- Each slide should contain succinct bullet points (maximum six per slide)
- Information on the slides does not count towards the word limit of 750 words (+/- 10%)
- Your notes should form the 'script' of your presentation (approx. 100 words per slide in the Notes section of the slide - what you would say if you were presenting the slides to an audience)
- You may wish to include images (need to be appropriately referenced) or web links to bring the presentation to life
- The presentation should be composed in a style appropriate for your community audience (no colloquial language should be used but provide information in a way that does not require expert background knowledge)
- A PowerPoint template is provided for you on the Moodle site with additional information
- There is also a guide on Moodle regarding how to turn your PowerPoint presentation into a pdf that displays the notes pages for submission

The assignment should be presented as a PowerPoint with notes pages. No specific font is required (although a font size of 20 is generally recommended to assist your audience to see the slides) – the PowerPoint should be aesthetically pleasing, free of grammatical and spelling errors and include appropriate in-text and end-text citations.

3 Essay

Assessment Type

Written Assessment

Task Description2500 words

This assessment provides you with the opportunity to thoroughly investigate and critique a key issue in Domestic and Family Violence (DFV): the complex and specific concerns associated with DFV as experienced by people with disabilities, particularly as it impacts on women.

You are asked to critique the following statements with reference to working with women with disabilities who are subjected to DFV:

Laing (2001) described DFV as 'both a personal problem and a social issue' (p. 2), while Grealy and colleagues (2008) indicated that 'practitioners working with women (and children) who have experienced family violence work within the context of an interplay between the structural and social dynamics of family violence and the personal experiences of clients (p. 17).

counselling and support program. Melbourne, VIC: Department of Human Services.

Guidelines:

Analyse and explain the meaning of the statements, discuss arguments for and against the notions outlined above, and provide relevant considerations in relation to victim-survivors' help-seeking and service needs. Provide a discussion on the implications for service delivery and what recommendations follow from the analysis for practitioners working in the DFV field.

There is an essay guide/template on the Moodle site which outlines how to write this argumentative essay.

A minimum of six academic references (i.e. journal articles) published 2010 or later are required for this assessment piece. In addition, you may draw on Australian statistics from government websites (e.g. Australian Bureau of Statistics, Australian Institute of Health and Welfare).

The assignment should be presented in essay format using Times News Roman 12 point font with 1.5 spacing. You should provide a brief introduction to the topic, a discussion of the different perspectives, and a conclusion (no new information and no citations) that summarises the key points and provides suggestions for future directions.

Academic Integrity Statement

As a CQUniversity student you are expected to act honestly in all aspects of your academic work.

Any assessable work undertaken or submitted for review or assessment must be your own work. Assessable work is any type of work you do to meet the assessment requirements in the unit, including draft work submitted for review and feedback and final work to be assessed.

When you use the ideas, words or data of others in your assessment, you must thoroughly and clearly acknowledge the source of this information by using the correct referencing style for your unit. Using others' work without proper acknowledgement may be considered a form of intellectual dishonesty.

Participating honestly, respectfully, responsibly, and fairly in your university study ensures the CQUniversity qualification you earn will be valued as a true indication of your individual academic achievement and will continue to receive the respect and recognition it deserves.

As a student, you are responsible for reading and following CQUniversity's policies, including the Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure. This policy sets out CQUniversity's expectations of you to act with integrity, examples of academic integrity breaches to avoid, the processes used to address alleged breaches of academic integrity, and potential penalties.

What is a breach of academic integrity?

A breach of academic integrity includes but is not limited to plagiarism, self-plagiarism, collusion, cheating, contract cheating, and academic misconduct. The Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure defines what these terms mean and gives examples.

Why is academic integrity important?

A breach of academic integrity may result in one or more penalties, including suspension or even expulsion from the University. It can also have negative implications for student visas and future enrolment at CQUniversity or elsewhere. Students who engage in contract cheating also risk being blackmailed by contract cheating services.

Where can I get assistance?

For academic advice and guidance, the Academic Learning Centre \(ALC\) can support you in becoming confident in completing assessments with integrity and of high standard.

What can you do to act with integrity?

Be Honest

If your assessment task is done by someone else, it would be dishonest of you to claim it as your own

Seek Help

If you are not sure about how to cite or reference in essays, reports etc, then seek help from your lecturer, the library or the Academic Learning Centre (ALC)

Produce Original Work

Originality comes from your ability to read widely, think critically, and apply your gained knowledge to address a question or problem
