General Information

Overview

This unit will provide you with opportunities to develop specialist knowledge of safe and respectful approaches to working with victims/survivors of domestic and family violence. It provides a theoretical framework of trauma as it relates to victims/ survivors of this violence and the effect it has on personal development and relationships. Using a gendered approach, critical use is made of evidence-based research, and practice and policy documents addressing issues related to victims/ survivors of violence. You will explore legal and safety considerations that arise from working with this client group and you will consider ethical, professional and self-management implications for practice. Particular consideration will be given to Culturally and Linguistically Diverse (CALD) and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities and victims/survivors.

Assessment Tasks

1 Portfolio - Vicarious Trauma

Assessment Type

Portfolio

Task Description

For this portfolio activity, you are asked to identify and unpack the key features of vicarious trauma when working with victim/survivors of Domestic and Family Violence (DFV). Vicarious trauma is an important issue that impacts clients, frontline workers and employers of support services. You will have the opportunity to demonstrate your knowledge and understanding of this concept as it relates to victim/survivors' experiences of DFV and service delivery in this area.

You should review and analyse the relevant literature to address the following questions:

- What are key features of vicarious trauma?
- How does vicarious trauma impact victim/survivors?
- How does vicarious trauma impact frontline workers?
- How does vicarious trauma impact employers of frontline workers?
- What are the implications for service delivery?

A minimum of six academic references (i.e. journal articles) published 2012 or later are required for this assessment piece. In addition, you may draw on Australian statistics from government websites (e.g. Australian Bureau of Statistics, Australian Institute of Health and Welfare).

2 Portfolio - Briefing Paper (vulnerable subpopulations)

Assessment Type

Portfolio

Task Description

For this portfolio activity, you are asked to develop a briefing paper for your manager of a victim support service. Please consider the issue of vulnerability and how it relates to working with victim/survivors of Domestic and Family Violence (DFV). Some women and children are more vulnerable and have specific complexities that will need to be considered when compared to victim/survivors who do not belong to minority groups (e.g., Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander women and children). This assessment provides you with the opportunity to demonstrate your knowledge and understanding of the specific issues relating to vulnerable subpopulations and consider practice approaches (implications for service delivery) to address these vulnerable groups' specific issues.

Please choose ONE vulnerable subpopulation for your review and analysis:

- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander women
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children
- Victim/survivors identifying as LGBTIQ+
- Victim/survivors from Culturally and Linguistically Diverse backgrounds

Guiding questions - make sure you answer all of the following questions:

- What is the specific group you have chosen (define the relevant features of the group)?
- How prevalent is DFV for this specific group?
- What are the specific vulnerabilities this group faces in relation to DFV?
- What are some strategies to overcome the identified issues in relation to specific vulnerabilities?

3 Written Assessment (Academic Essay)

Assessment Type

Written Assessment

Task Description

For this assignment you will need to develop a safety plan for a female, adult client accessing your service. You are asked to consider safety approaches for the client, her family and yourself along with ethical and legal implications. This will include description of the level of risk to the client's safety, and safety of other members of the family such as children, and grandparents along with resources the client can draw on (using an empowerment approach). You will also need to consider external safety mechanisms that need to be put into place (e.g. involvement of other agencies/service sectors).

You may discuss an actual 'case' or 'make up' a suitable vignette yourself.

Alternatively, you can use the one described below:

Anne (39) left the residence she shared with her abusive husband yesterday and presented today at the DFV support service where you are a case worker. She attended with her 5-year-old daughter Eva and her 12-year-old son Chris with her. Anne stated that she had spent the night at her sister's place, but indicated that this is not a long-term solution because her sister has limited space and Anne's husband knows where her sister Maddie lives. In fact, Anne informs you that he already rang Maddie to try and get to Anne and that he has also threatened to involve the children if she does not immediately come back (she said that 'he is the jealous type'). This is not the first time Anne left the house with her children. She has rung DFV support services in the past and stayed at the local refuge previously but returned every time, wanting to believe his apologies and that he will never hurt her again. Anne is worried about returning to the family home because she feels that the emotional, physical and sexual abuse (pressuring her into things she does not feel comfortable with) has escalated in recent weeks, but she is also unsure where to find safe and sustainable accommodation.

If you choose to use the vignette provided above, please consider safety measures suitable for Anne who has left her abusive husband very recently with her two dependants (Eva and Chris) who are both minors.

Regardless of whether you choose your own 'case' or the vignette, you are asked to consider the following:

- Briefly summarise the case and identify relevant safety issues
- Identify key risk indicators mentioned in the literature that align with your case
- Discuss risk assessment and planning issues (what mechanisms need to be put in place to maximise your client's, relevant others' and your own safety

- Describe safety measures that are tailored to the case (e.g., thinking about Anne, Eva and Chris, her husband and yourself)
- Describe challenges associated with service delivery (e.g., accommodation issues, child contact issues) drawing from the academic literature (are there any ethical or legal issues to be considered?)
- Provide an appropriate solution to reduce risk and maximise safety for the family and yourself/organisation

Academic Integrity Statement

As a CQUniversity student you are expected to act honestly in all aspects of your academic work.

Any assessable work undertaken or submitted for review or assessment must be your own work. Assessable work is any type of work you do to meet the assessment requirements in the unit, including draft work submitted for review and feedback and final work to be assessed.

When you use the ideas, words or data of others in your assessment, you must thoroughly and clearly acknowledge the source of this information by using the correct referencing style for your unit. Using others' work without proper acknowledgement may be considered a form of intellectual dishonesty.

Participating honestly, respectfully, responsibly, and fairly in your university study ensures the CQUniversity qualification you earn will be valued as a true indication of your individual academic achievement and will continue to receive the respect and recognition it deserves.

As a student, you are responsible for reading and following CQUniversity's policies, including the Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure. This policy sets out CQUniversity's expectations of you to act with integrity, examples of academic integrity breaches to avoid, the processes used to address alleged breaches of academic integrity, and potential penalties.

What is a breach of academic integrity?

A breach of academic integrity includes but is not limited to plagiarism, self-plagiarism, collusion, cheating, contract cheating, and academic misconduct. The Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure defines what these terms mean and gives examples.

Why is academic integrity important?

A breach of academic integrity may result in one or more penalties, including suspension or even expulsion from the University. It can also have negative implications for student visas and future enrolment at CQUniversity or elsewhere. Students who engage in contract cheating also risk being blackmailed by contract cheating services.

Where can I get assistance?

For academic advice and guidance, the Academic Learning Centre \(ALC\) can support you in becoming confident in completing assessments with integrity and of high standard.

What can you do to act with integrity?

Be Honest

If your assessment task is done by someone else, it would be dishonest of you to claim it as your own

Seek Help

If you are not sure about how to cite or reference in essays, reports etc, then seek help from your lecturer, the library or the Academic Learning Centre (ALC)

Produce Original Work

Originality comes from your ability to read widely, think critically, and apply your gained knowledge to address a question or problem
