General Information

Overview

The unit Arts and learning in the Early Years introduces the rationale, aims and content of the Australian Curriculum: The Arts through a focus on children's ways of knowing and meaning making. Students reflect on their own engagement with the processes of Making and Responding which comprise the strands of the Arts curriculum to examine the role educators play in supporting young children as unique, confident and capable learners and effective communicators while meeting the stated aims of Arts learning in school contexts. Students investigate the importance of responsive interactions, connectedness and aesthetics for making meaning through and in the five distinct areas of the Arts curriculum and analyse the effect of pedagogical approaches that afford time to be present with children and support their creativity and expression of ideas. They problematise how these approaches to Arts learning may be supported in the transition to formal schooling and the implementation of the Arts curriculum in the Foundation to Year 2 Band Level. Students deepen their intellectual and emotional engagement with the challenges of planning and delivering authentic Arts learning experiences for children through a process of inquiry and documentation that makes young children's learning and meaning making processes visible. They respond to this process by writing a manifesto that identifies guiding values, principles and practices for themselves as contemporary early childhood educators in the Arts.

Assessment Tasks

1 Presentation and reflections on making and responding in the Arts

Assessment Type

Presentation and Written Assessment

Task Description

Task 1 requires you to be an active participant in developing an artefact or performance that aligns with The Arts curriculum. Foundation - Yr 2 band, Making and Responding strand and reflecting on the process of development. This assessment task will require you to use your understandings of The Arts: Making and Responding strands from the Australian Curriculum. Identification of a personally significant artifact or dramatic performance will be supported by a written explanation and a reflection of the significance of the process and design of the artifact or performance.

This task is comprised of 2 parts.

Part A:

You will develop and share a piece of personally significant artwork and identify the components that specifically link to The Arts curriculum - Making and Responding strand. In response to this task, on campus students will prepare a live presentation to their tutorial group as negotiated with their tutor; distance students will prepare a digital presentation (wiki, wix, powerpoint or similar) for submission that reflects the learning processes undertaken when making and responding to the development of the chosen medium within the Arts curriculum.

The presentation will include an image/s or real artifacts (on campus students) along with a short written reflection on the processes and skills related to the two strands with which you engaged. Consider how your preparation for and presentation of your work reflected the aims of the Arts curriculum.

Approximately 500 words.

Part B:

Identify common factors for yourself and children that support meaningful Arts learning by enhancing meaning-making, offering sources of wonder and inspiration whilst contributing to a sense of connectedness. Consider the learning, sensory and emotional experiences that you engaged in when completing your personally significant artifact. Relate this process to that of a child experiencing making and responding strands in The Arts.

Draw on your experiences as a participant in the Arts learning process and your reflections in Part A, engagement with course readings and the rationale, aims and content of the curriculum for the Foundation to Year 2 Band Level of The Arts curriculum to form links to future classroom teaching practices.

Approximately 1000 words.

Weighting: 50%

Further detailed information and a guide to completing the task will be found on the moodle site in the Assessment Block.

NOTE: This assessment task builds knowledge of the content, aims and structure of the Australian curriculum: The Arts. Assessment Type

Practical and Written Assessment

Task Description

Task 2 requires you to be a facilitator and observer of the learning and engagement of young children whilst participating in The Arts strands.

Part A:

You are required to observe and then document children's engagement in the Arts processes of Making and Responding and create and present a visual learning story that will be shared with your tutorial group (on campus students) or submitted online using a wiki, wix, powerpoint or similar (distance students).

Your documentation should include observations from a range of age groups including young children prior to school age and those in the focus year levels of Foundation to Year 2. It is expected that your observations will be of at least 2 children of different ages in the early years age group. Your documentation should record a story that identifies:

- contextual information - who the children are and their relationship to each other, ages or year levels, male/female
- their interactions with significant adults and each other,
- the developmental theories they are testing and
- the processes of Making and Responding to artworks available.

Visual representation with supportive text that explains the process observed is required.
