General Information

Overview

A growing body of research highlights the range of social, economic and political factors influencing the lives of children families and communities. This unit introduces legislation, policy frameworks and theories of human development that underpin inclusion and socially-just educational practice. You will reflect on the roles and responsibilities of teachers in catering for children and families with a diverse range of educational needs, including children from Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander backgrounds and learners with disability. You will appraise a range of perspectives on inclusive education and examine the impact of socioeconomic, cultural and religious backgrounds on the engagement of children and families in educational contexts prior to, and in the early years of formal schooling. Using this knowledge and carefully selected research, you will recommend approaches to teaching practice and relationship-building with families, community representatives and external professionals as sources of ongoing professional learning that support the transition of young children to formal schooling and improve access, equity and learning outcomes for all children including learners with diverse family backgrounds, characteristics and abilities.

Assessment Grading

This is a graded unit: your overall grade will be calculated from the marks or grades for each assessment task, based on the relative weightings shown in the table above. You must obtain an overall mark for the unit of at least 50%, or an overall grade of 'pass' in order to pass the unit. If any 'pass/fail' tasks are shown in the table above they must also be completed successfully ('pass' grade). You must also meet any minimum mark requirements specified for a particular assessment task, as detailed in the 'assessment task' section (note that in some instances, the minimum mark for a task may be greater than 50%). Consult the University's Grades and Results Policy for more details of interim results and final grades.

Unit Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

1. Analyse the legislative and policy framework underpinning inclusive education in contemporary education and care settings
2. Appraise perspectives and debates on the inclusion of students with disability to propose strategies and practices for creating safe and supportive learning environments that achieve the goals of inclusive education policy
3. Reflect critically on the teacher's role in establishing relationships with parents, carers, external professionals and community groups to support the safety, wellbeing and educative process for all children, including learners with diverse cultural and social needs, disability and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander backgrounds
4. Synthesise knowledge and understanding of bioecological theories of development to create a representation of practices, interactions and strategies for responding ethically and sensitively to family and community complexity
5. Explicate and justify culturally responsive teaching practices that meet the needs of individuals and groups from diverse backgrounds, including children from Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures
6. Generate a framework for inquiry into teaching practice that shows an understanding of the impact of teachers' professional learning on improved outcomes for children with diverse characteristics, backgrounds and learning needs
7. Explain the impact of teachers' knowledge and understanding of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander histories, cultures and languages on the creation of inclusive learning environments that promote respect and reconciliation.

Learning outcomes and assessment in this unit provide opportunities for students to engage with content and practices in the Australian Professional Standards for Teachers (Graduate Stage) focus areas of:

- 1.1 Physical, social and intellectual development and characteristics of students
