General Information

Overview

Responding to Diversity and Inclusion develops students' knowledge and understanding of legislation and policy related to inclusion in educational settings. Students examine representations of diversity and difference in contemporary Australian society and the ways in which stereotypes associated with marginalised groups are constructed and maintained. They reflect on the legislative and policy framework; explore ways in which personal assumptions, biases and value positions affect the "labelling" of students from diverse social, cultural and economic groups including students with disabilities; and, evaluate the impact of their own socio-cultural backgrounds and belief systems on creating inclusive settings. Students identify barriers to learning for diverse groups including culturally diverse students and students with special needs and critique strategies for responding to and valuing diversity and promoting social inclusion in educational settings.

Assessment Tasks

1 Responding to inclusion and diversity

Assessment Type

Written Assessment

Task Description

This assessment task requires you to analyse and reflect on the concepts of access, change and formation of attitudes in the context of the work of educators in contemporary Australian settings. To complete this task, you will submit a written response of 1500 words (maximum) that includes each of the sections outlined below.

- Definitions of key concepts (200-300 words)

Attitudes towards difference and diversity can influence how society and communities experience social inclusion or exclusion. These attitudes can influence access and participation to all aspects of community life including education. In your response to this define the following concepts:

- Stereotype,
- Racism,
- Prejudice,
- Social justice.

Be sure to provide an example of each concept in action in Australian society.

- The Australian social context - evidence of discrimination or social inclusion (300-400 words)

The media is often said to reflect our society and portrays difference and diversity within the community through the way that different groups or people are characterized in advertisements, film or television programs, news reporting and people employed as presenters.

Using examples from a range of media texts demonstrate the extent to which Australia can be called an inclusive or exclusive society.

You will need to demonstrate an understanding of how this affects students, particularly those from Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander backgrounds (APST 1.4).

- Legislation and education policy responses to inclusion (300-400 words)

Identify and discuss the legislative frameworks that, in turn, forms the basis for inclusive education policies in your State.

You will need to consider how legislation and policies impact on the legal responsibilities and practice of educators in school, classroom or care settings (APST 7.2).

This response will need to demonstrate your understanding of the key principles described in the relevant codes of conduct and ethics for the teaching profession (APST 7.1).

- Reflection on your attitude and ability to respond to diversity and inclusion (300-400 words)

Critically reflect on how you might approach your work in responding to diversity and inclusion as a future teacher.

Consider your responses to The Australian social context and Legislation and education policy outlined above:

- How do media representations of discrimination and/or social inclusion impact on your role as a teacher?
- How will both federal and state legislation, along with their related education policies, affect you in your role as a teacher?
- Also consider what influence your own cultural background and life experience may have on your attitudes around student diversity and inclusion.
- Include how you plan to engage with community and professional representatives to broaden your professional knowledge and practice (APST 7.4).
- Be sure to address how this continued professional learning will support you to improve student learning (APST 6.4).

2 Differentiation and catering for differences

Assessment Type

Written Assessment

Task Description

Differentiation is a process of adapting curricula and classroom environments to promote quality learning for all students. This task provides an opportunity for you to demonstrate an understanding of how inclusive practice can be achieved through responsive teaching and the selection of strategies that effectively cater for the characteristics of a diverse range of learners. To complete this task you will submit a written response of 2000 words (maximum) addressing each of the sections below:

Labelling and the rights of all students to access education (400-500 words)

There are on-going debates about the efficacy of inclusion and labelling with different attitudes and perceptions raised by students, parents and teachers regarding access to education.

Identify and discuss these arguments, focussing on how legislative requirements and teaching strategies support participation and learning of students with disability (APST 1.6).

You will also need to address how you intend to support the general wellbeing and safety of students (APST 4.4).

Personal approach to differentiation (400-500 words)

You will now be aware that your classroom will have a diverse range of students with specific characteristics that affect their learning, ranging from cultural, linguistic, social-emotional, cognitive and physical disabilities, learning difficulties and socioeconomic differences (APST 1.1).

Using unit readings and your set text select, describe behaviour management and teaching strategies along with other important practices that are claimed to be responsive to the strengths and needs of diverse learners (APST 1.3 & 4.3).

You will need to outline how you would use these to establish inclusive practice in your classroom (APST 4.1).

Catering for Gifted and Talented learners (300-400 words)

Gifted and talented students are a group of specific learners that are often missed within the busy classroom. Demonstrate what management and teaching strategies would you use to cater for this group of learners; and consider the ways you could meet the specific learning needs of students across the full range of abilities (APST 1.5).

Fostering positive relationships and quality education and care (400-500 words)

Demonstrate how your approach to differentiation would foster positive social relationships and well-being between teachers and diverse learners, families and communities in education / care settings.

You will need to focus on how you will involve parents in the educative process (APST 3.7) in an effective, sensitive and confidential way (APST 7.3).

Academic Integrity Statement

As a CQUniversity student you are expected to act honestly in all aspects of your academic work.

Any assessable work undertaken or submitted for review or assessment must be your own work. Assessable work is any type of work you do to meet the assessment requirements in the unit, including draft work submitted for review and feedback and final work to be assessed.

When you use the ideas, words or data of others in your assessment, you must thoroughly and clearly acknowledge the source of this information by using the correct referencing style for your unit. Using others' work without proper acknowledgement may be considered a form of intellectual dishonesty.

Participating honestly, respectfully, responsibly, and fairly in your university study ensures the CQUniversity qualification you earn will be valued as a true indication of your individual academic achievement and will continue to receive the respect and recognition it deserves.

As a student, you are responsible for reading and following CQUniversity's policies, including the Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure. This policy sets out CQUniversity's expectations of you to act with integrity, examples of academic integrity breaches to avoid, the processes used to address alleged breaches of academic integrity, and potential penalties.

What is a breach of academic integrity?

A breach of academic integrity includes but is not limited to plagiarism, self-plagiarism, collusion, cheating, contract cheating, and academic misconduct. The Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure defines what these terms mean and gives examples.

Why is academic integrity important?

A breach of academic integrity may result in one or more penalties, including suspension or even expulsion from the University. It can also have negative implications for student visas and future enrolment at CQUniversity or elsewhere. Students who engage in contract cheating also risk being blackmailed by contract cheating services.

Where can I get assistance?

For academic advice and guidance, the Academic Learning Centre \(ALC\) can support you in becoming confident in completing assessments with integrity and of high standard.

What can you do to act with integrity?

Be Honest

If your assessment task is done by someone else, it would be dishonest of you to claim it as your own

Seek Help

If you are not sure about how to cite or reference in essays, reports etc, then seek help from your lecturer, the library or the Academic Learning Centre (ALC)

Produce Original Work

Originality comes from your ability to read widely, think critically, and apply your gained knowledge to address a question or problem
