General Information

Overview

In this unit you will be introduced to a range of “hands-on” practical and theoretical cookery skills and techniques appropriate for Home Economics and Design and Technologies food specialisation contexts in secondary schools. You will develop and create designed food solutions using the design process and explore complex factors that impact food production and consumption including social, cultural, ethical, marketing, safety and sustainability considerations. You will be required to adhere to food safety practices, risk assessment procedures, and comply with relevant hospitality industry regulations and requirements when engaging in kitchen operations, food production and food service.
