ENEC13015 Steel and Timber Design

Term 1 - 2026

Profile information current as at 14/12/2025 04:17 pm

All details in this unit profile for ENEC13015 have been officially approved by CQUniversity and represent a learning partnership between the University and you (our student). The information will not be changed unless absolutely necessary and any change will be clearly indicated by an approved correction included in the profile.

General Information

Overview

This unit introduces Australian Standards used for steel and timber design. Basic material and section properties and factors affecting the properties of structural members are introduced. You will design steel and timber members subjected to axial loads, bending moments and combined actions, then check whether they comply with both ultimate and serviceability limit states as required in AS4100 and AS1720 respectively. Furthermore, you also will design steel connection and timber joints according to Australian Standards. You also develop skills in the use of computer software in structural design. You are expected to document the process of analysis and design and communicate, work and learn, both individually and in teams in a professional manner.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from SUTE

Feedback

Foster more student interaction.

Recommendation

Scheduled classes should be used as interactive tutorial classes/workshops to discuss the weekly contents.

Feedback from SUTE

Feedback

Assessments are marked and handed back as advised.

Recommendation

This good practice should be continued in the next offer.

Feedback from SUTE

Feedback

Some groups had issues with the late withdrawal of students.

Recommendation

Assessment tasks should be changed to individual tasks rather than group assessments to avoid issues.
