ENEC14017 Water Resources Engineering

Term 2 - 2024

Profile information current as at 12/05/2024 11:01 pm

All details in this unit profile for ENEC14017 have been officially approved by CQUniversity and represent a learning partnership between the University and you (our student). The information will not be changed unless absolutely necessary and any change will be clearly indicated by an approved correction included in the profile.

General Information

Overview

In this unit, you will be introduced to the principles of hydraulics and hydrology and how to apply solutions to solve water engineering problems. This unit introduces the principles to solve water resources engineering problems on catchment hydrology and urban floodwater management. You will study governing concepts of probability, risk, and uncertainty applied to hydrology and hydraulics. You will also study rainfall patterns, river and reservoir routing, rapid and gradually varying flow in open channels, flood and stormwater control, and the design of hydraulic structures. To complete these tasks, you must use appropriate technical language, communicate professionally, and work in teams and individually.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Student Unit and Teaching Evaluation & Self-reflection

Feedback

Some students perceived the workload as heavy.

Recommendation

Unit content evaluation should be carried out to assess the workload.

Feedback from Student Unit and Teaching Evaluation

Feedback

Some students found the useful feedback was limited.

Recommendation

A group feedback session to discuss overall feedback should be conducted after marking the assessment. It should allow for a more comprehensive understanding of the feedback provided and promote collective learning and improvement.
