Applications

Term 2 - 2024

Profile information current as at 10/05/2024 09:32 am

All details in this unit profile for ENEE14007 have been officially approved by CQUniversity and represent a learning partnership between the University and you (our student). The information will not be changed unless absolutely necessary and any change will be clearly indicated by an approved correction included in the profile.

General Information

Overview

In this project-based learning unit, you will analyse and design systems and components that convert electrical energy into mechanical energy. You will investigate the construction and operational characteristics of various DC and AC electrical machines, analyse machine protection and control schemes and select and specify machines for particular applications. Furthermore, you will learn about components and materials for electrical machines, and use power electronics to optimise the performance of energy conversion. You are expected to learn and work individually and in teams to complete projects, to develop interpersonal and technical communication skills and to prepare professional documentation, including problem solutions, electrical designs and project reports. Distance education students are required to have access to a computer, to make frequent use of the Internet. In this unit, you must complete compulsory practical activities. Refer to the Engineering Undergraduate Course Moodle site for proposed dates.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Unit evaluation

Feedback

Students found this unit well-taught and appreciated the good level of support available throughout the term by the unit coordinator.

Recommendation

Continue this good practice.

Feedback from Unit evaluation

Feedback

Students found some of the assessment questions not descriptive and clear as they should be.

Recommendation

In the future offering, add more details to the assessment questions to avoid confusion and more clarity.

Feedback from Unit evaluation

Feedback

Learning materials in this unit might be not properly linked with a few online quiz questions.

Recommendation

In the future offering, check online quiz questions and make sure that the questions can be answered by students using the available learning resources on Moodle.
