General Information

Overview

On successful completion of this unit you will have an appreciation of social determinants on your own and others' health outcomes. You will understand how early childhood experiences, culture, ethnicity, gender, socioeconomic status and education play out to influence health at individual, community and societal levels. You will explore the impacts of racism, sexism, poverty and inequality on social gradients and the short and long term effects on health. You will also explore the social protective factors of community connectedness and identity and be introduced to key social innovation concepts. Finally, you will have the opportunity to refine your academic searching and writing skills through the literacy and information literacy resources provided in this unit.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Unit coordinator reflection

Clinical health science students benefit from having the relevance of unit concepts (that relate to the social determinants of health) made to their clinical practice.

Recommendation

Continue to explain the relevance of foundational health concepts to clinical practice throughout the term, particularly for clinical health science students.

Feedback from Unit coordinator reflection, student feedback via email

Feedback

Assessment 1 involves self-reflection on questions students might find confronting and personally challenging to respond to.

Recommendation

Offer students an additional option for completing Assessment 1, where they can choose student sample responses to use to address the reflective questions.
