General Information

Overview

One of the most challenging tasks confronted by university graduates working in human resources is the management of conflict and effective practice of negotiation. Accordingly, as a graduate, you will required some fundamental skills from the very start of your career. These include the ability to apply basic psychological principles when dealing with people, the ability to prepare and conduct effective negotiations, and the ability find productive solutions in conflict situations. This unit is designed to provide you with the opportunity to build upon theory from earlier units, and to acquire conflict resolution skills that will be applicable in the workplace.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Student feedback

Opportunities to interact with the unit coordinator online were useful.

Recommendation

Regular 'drop-in' sessions will be used to ensure students always have an opportunity to interact with the unit coordinator.

Feedback from Student feedback and personal reflection

Feedback

The online negotiation simulation again received very positive responses from students, and was an effective way to develop practical skills

Recommendation

Maintain the online negotiation simulation activity.
