General Information

Overview

In this unit you will examine law and policy related to human obligations to non-human animals in Australia. The assessment structure and unit content emphasises the development of critical thinking skills through scholarly engagement with contemporary policy and law reform debates. You will develop research skills in an area of your choosing within the scope of the topics examined. You will also be supported to reflect on and articulate reasoned positions in relation to a range of legal, regulatory, and ethical questions raised by animal protection and the law. Module One considers the history of animal law and the role of ethics, science, ideology and politics in shaping animal law and policy in Australia. Module Two explores animal law as framed by two concepts: animal welfare and animal cruelty. It examines the integration of these concepts into legislative and regulatory regimes, and animal law and policy reform. Module Three involves a weekly focus on a specific area of animal law: farmed animals, companion animals, wildlife, animals as 'pests', animals used in scientific research, and animals used in sport and entertainment. The unit fosters a global perspective by reflecting on relevant international law and the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from SUTE

Assessment 3 would be more effective if integrated across the entire term, encouraging us to stay up to date and apply the material in a more practical and enjoyable way.

Recommendation

Assessment 3 is a discussion forum. It currently covers two weeks' content. I agree with this student's feedback and have contacted the School of Business and Law's educational development team to work on a revised assessment that will address this gap.

Feedback from SUTE

Feedback

The guest speakers were exceptional and knowledgeable in their respective fields.

Recommendation

I will continue to invite guest speakers.
