Term 2 - 2019

Profile information current as at 02/05/2024 03:18 pm

All details in this unit profile for LAWS12072 have been officially approved by CQU University and represent a learning partnership between the University and you (our student). The information will not be changed unless absolutely necessary and any change will be clearly indicated by an approved correction included in the profile.

General Information

Overview

In your first year of law studies you will have learned the foundations of legal research and knowledge management. Legal Research will develop these skills to a level appropriate for a legal professional working as a researcher, legal project manager and in all other areas of legal practice. You will learn to access, analyse and evaluate information from legal authorities and from other relevant disciplinary knowledge bases. In Legal Research you will work with your peers in a learning community to apply your research skills in the context of a current legal research project such as contemporary law reform issue, a project for a community legal centre or the work of a research centre. You will prepare a research document which engages with a real public interest law issue and produce an artefact which will then form part of your professional portfolio.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Surveys, email, consultations

Feedback

Some students still feel unprepared for a research unit and are uncertain about basic research tasks such as using the law library.

Recommendation

We are working to introduce basic research resources for first years. A "legal research toolkit" moodle meta-unit has been created and will detail basic skills, similar to the service a law librarian would usually offer at other law schools.

Feedback from Surveys, email, consultations

Feedback

Students lack experience with writing research papers

Recommendation

We will explore the need for more research papers at first year, supported by basic research and writing resources in the moodle meta-unit. While the LPAB accreditors are emphasising invigilated exams and we also want to implement diverse assessment strategies, we also need to ensure that students are getting experience writing research papers.

Feedback from Surveys, email, consultations

Feedback

Some students struggled with the serious nature of the research topic

Recommendation

Students were given the option of an alternative topic but no one took this up. This unit's supporting materials encourages students to explore their reactions to the serious issues raised in legal situations and to develop professional modes of coping with the stress of legal practise. Around 20 students took the opportunity to discuss these and other study issues in the private consultation sessions. We will continue to emphasise these strategies for developing professional identity and study skills.

Feedback from Observation of attendance at workshops and activity on forums

Feedback

There was not strong student engagement in this unit.

Recommendation

While some students appreciate the ability to work alone, we also have to encourage engagement among the student body. Perusall, the social learning platform was not effective nor was the Moodle forum system. We will look to having a better learning forum system implemented, such as Piazza, that can be easily be integrated into moodle.

Unit Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

1. Develop and evaluate strategies for solving legal problems, researching options and presenting solutions using a variety of different research and collaboration tools
2. Analyse legal problems through critical thinking, evaluating and weighing evidence and developing alternative solutions
3. Engage in collaborative research as a member of the learning community and as an ethically responsible professional
4. Activate solutions and apply research toward legal change in context of a practical research project of public interest.

Assessment Tasks

1 Research Portfolio

Assessment Type

Portfolio

Task Description

This unit models a regular and incremental approach to research work that is consistent with professional life rather than the 'just in time' strategies that many students apply to assignment tasks. The life-cycle of a research project is broken into 12 weekly workshop tasks in order to develop an orderly and iterative progress toward completion. Through discussion of these tasks in weekly zoom workshops and in the forums you will be able to get further guidance and feedback on your progress – from the coordinator and your peers.

This approach encourages you to be overt and reflexive about your research process – to keep good records and be self-critical about your own methods and organisational techniques. When working in a professional research environment these processes are important for working with peers, supervisors and other stakeholders. During this term you will build on the techniques you learned in LAWS11057 Introduction to Law and refine your approach to accommodate your own individual research style.

At the end of the term you will assemble these artefacts into a portfolio for submission.

There is no word limit for this assessment item as the tasks involve different types of activity to traditional essay writing. However, one half to one page should be sufficient for each task and some may be shorter. The aim of the exercise is to show your working and the thinking that underlies it rather than produce a polished final product.

2 Problem Analysis and Project Plan

Assessment Type

Written Assessment

Task Description

In this unit you will be allocated a portion of a law reform issues paper and you will be responsible for developing a submission on it, with the support of your peers. Your first task will be to develop a problem analysis and project plan in order to gain feedback.

As part of this process it is permissible, even recommended, to ask questions in the body of your plan. If you desire specific feedback on a particular choice or methodological design, ask this overtly within the plan to ensure that you receive clear feedback.

This plan will include:

- A statement of your research topic, expressed as a critical argument
- An analysis of stakeholders and members of the community who are affected by the law reform issue.
- An analysis of jurisdictional issues and map of regulatory networks
- An overview of the current field of research, including the documents of key organisations, important research voices and significant publications
- A project plan stating key timelines and organizational matters

3 Final Project

Assessment Type

Task Description

As legal practitioners, we have a professional responsibility to protect rule of law and the integrity of our legal systems. One aspect of this ethical duty is the responsibility to engage with law reform, particularly through the inquiries of state and federal Law Reform Commissions. These organisations have their own research staff but also rely on the public submissions of professionals, organisations and members of the community to assist in the process.

In Legal Research we are using this context to illustrate the full spectrum of legal research skills through authentic assessment, and also to provide a public good. Throughout the term you will have developed your submission via your weekly workshop tasks and the feedback that you receive on your Problem Analysis and Project Plan. The resulting final project will be delivered in a format suitable for making a public submission and we strongly encourage students to actually do this. Note that commission deadlines might be different to university deadlines and you may need to submit an early version of your paper to the inquiry before the due date, but this will not affect your grade on your final submission.

In addition to assessment, it is recommended that you include a copy of your submission in your professional portfolio.

Academic Integrity Statement

As a CQUniversity student you are expected to act honestly in all aspects of your academic work.

Any assessable work undertaken or submitted for review or assessment must be your own work. Assessable work is any type of work you do to meet the assessment requirements in the unit, including draft work submitted for review and feedback and final work to be assessed.

When you use the ideas, words or data of others in your assessment, you must thoroughly and clearly acknowledge the source of this information by using the correct referencing style for your unit. Using others' work without proper acknowledgement may be considered a form of intellectual dishonesty.

Participating honestly, respectfully, responsibly, and fairly in your university study ensures the CQUniversity qualification you earn will be valued as a true indication of your individual academic achievement and will continue to receive the respect and recognition it deserves.

As a student, you are responsible for reading and following CQUniversity's policies, including the Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure. This policy sets out CQUniversity's expectations of you to act with integrity, examples of academic integrity breaches to avoid, the processes used to address alleged breaches of academic integrity, and potential penalties.

What is a breach of academic integrity?

A breach of academic integrity includes but is not limited to plagiarism, self-plagiarism, collusion, cheating, contract cheating, and academic misconduct. The Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure defines what these terms mean and gives examples.

Why is academic integrity important?

A breach of academic integrity may result in one or more penalties, including suspension or even expulsion from the University. It can also have negative implications for student visas and future enrolment at CQUniversity or elsewhere. Students who engage in contract cheating also risk being blackmailed by contract cheating services.

Where can I get assistance?

For academic advice and guidance, the Academic Learning Centre \(ALC\) can support you in becoming confident in completing assessments with integrity and of high standard.

What can you do to act with integrity?

Be Honest

If your assessment task is done by someone else, it would be dishonest of you to claim it as your own

Seek Help

If you are not sure about how to cite or reference in essays, reports etc, then seek help from your lecturer, the library or the Academic Learning Centre (ALC)

Produce Original Work

Originality comes from your ability to read widely, think critically, and apply your gained knowledge to address a question or problem
