General Information

Overview

The aim of Australian Literature and Identity is to show you how Australia as a nation is imagined through various contemporary works of literature, particularly from the immediate post-war period until now (1945 onwards). You will explore the ways in which Australian identities are constituted, changed and challenged by these texts, through a variety of critical perspectives and contexts of reception. You will also reflect on how the texts challenge or reinforce your thinking about Australian ideologies and/or identity.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Unit coordinator observation.

Feedback

The unit provided strong support for developing critical theory and analytical skills; however, there is an opportunity to slightly strengthen the connection between these skills and the unit's thematic focus to encourage more integrated engagement with weekly content.

Recommendation

Review weekly content for small opportunities to link analytical methods with the themes and texts under discussion. This may look like double-checking short activities (testing knowledge) at the end of study guides or within tutorials, question prompts in weekly forums.

Feedback from Student feedback and unit coordinator observation.

Feedback

Tim Winton's "Dirt Music" is not available as a complete online resource in the e-reading list, therefore its inclusion as an option in the reading text list (for the assessments and essay questions) should be reviewed.

Recommendation

Review text list and ensure all texts (novel and short story collections) are readily accessible for students. Make clear which texts are fully available via the e-reading list or physical library loan, and/or remove unattainable texts.
