This unit examines a number of contemporary theoretical issues in the context of the history of literary theory. It offers students an opportunity to explore how different critical perspectives and reading practices, such as Leavisitism, New Criticism, Marxism, Feminism, Structuralism and Poststructuralism, have contributed to the development of contemporary problematisations of theoretical issues such as representation, race, gender, discourse, narrative, metafiction, ideology, ethnicity, class and value.

Assessment Grading

This is a graded unit: your overall grade will be calculated from the marks or grades for each assessment task, based on the relative weightings shown in the table above. You must obtain an overall mark for the unit of at least 50%, or an overall grade of 'pass' in order to pass the unit. If any 'pass/fail' tasks are shown in the table above they must also be completed successfully ('pass' grade). You must also meet any minimum mark requirements specified for a particular assessment task, as detailed in the 'assessment task' section (note that in some instances, the minimum mark for a task may be greater than 50%). Consult the University's Grades and Results Policy for more details of interim results and final grades.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Unit Evaluation

Feedback

I feel that the provision of exemplars would have helped me to understand the requirements of the assessment tasks better.

Recommendation

Although extensive advice is provided on how to construct each assessment, exemplars will be provided in 2019.

Feedback from Unit Evaluation

Feedback

Although the lectures contain a lot of valuable information, they are a bit dated and the lecture notes no longer correspond.

Recommendation

The lectures and other resources will all be updated in 2019.

Feedback from Unit Evaluation

Feedback

Unit was well-organised. Content and assessment tasks all worked cohesively in a way that I think helped maximise learning and understanding. A great range of relevant resources (readings) were provided.

Recommendation

The unit coordinator will ensure that the unit continues to interest and challenge serious students.

Unit Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

1. Demonstrate sound historical knowledge of the key contemporary theoretical ideas and concepts relevant to literary and cultural studies, as well as an elementary understanding of contemporary theories that both affirm and contest these assumptions;
2. Recognise key theorists and texts in criticism and theory;
3. Identify, analyse and assess significant critical debates surrounding relevant ideas and concepts, as well as theoretical problems associated with how texts make meaning;
4. Reflect on positions taken by various theorists, and to understand some of their social, ethical and political implications; and,
5. Show developed research, interpretative, argumentation and communication skills.

Assessment Tasks

1 Annotated Bibliography

Assessment Type

Written Assessment

Task Description

Length: No less than 1500 words

Weighting: 20%

Details

Students will prepare an Annotated Bibliography with no less than 6 references on one of the following essay topics:

1. 'Broadly applied, literary theory describes a way of thinking transformed by Saussure, shaped by (post)structuralism, and fascinated with contemporary conceptions of culture.' Discuss.
2. 'Culture is both a means of domination, of assuring the rule of one class or group over another, and a means of resistance to such domination, a way of articulating oppositional points of view to those in dominance.' Discuss.
3. 'Contemporary critical practice calls into question certain claims about literature and art's ability to produce certain kinds of truths and values.' Discuss.
4. Fuery and Mansfield argue that 'all knowledge, no matter the rigour of its empirical method, is at least mediated, if not structured, by the human conventions of communication' (Cultural Studies and Critical Theory p. 201). Discuss.

Note that the essay topic you choose for this assignment should be the same topic you will choose for your essay for Assignment 3. However, for this assignment, you will only prepare an annotated bibliography, not actually write the essay.

An annotated bibliography is a list of references with a brief description and evaluation of each one. You will be assessed on the quality and relevance of each reference as well as on the standard of your analysis, so choosing your research sources is an important part of the assignment task.

How to choose your references

All references need to be academic (i.e. peer-reviewed journal articles and/or scholarly books) and obtained using the Library's databases and/or resources. Wiki and other non-scholarly references from the Internet will not be accepted. Relevant chapters from the set text (Barry, Beginning Theory) may be included, but they DO NOT count as part of the required 6 references. Note that articles published in the last 5-10 years are more likely to be relevant.

As the Annotated Bibliography will form the foundation of the essay you will write for Assignment 3, choose references you think will be most useful for you in developing and supporting your arguments for the essay.

How to write your annotations

For each reference, give full referencing details in Harvard (author-date) referencing style followed by a succinct paragraph (200-250 words each) that answers the following questions:

1. What is the writer's main idea/thesis/argument?
2. Why is the writer making their argument?
3. What reasons/evidence does the writer use to support his/her case?
4. How is this source relevant for your essay?

If you feel more comfortable using these questions as headings, please do (but the words do not count as part of the word limit). Do not refer to whole books unless you are absolutely confident that the whole book is relevant and you have read it (i.e. if you reference the whole book, the assumption is that it is all relevant). You might find it beneficial to choose one or two chapters from a book rather than reference the whole thing.

Put your references in alphabetical order by author surname, as you would in an ordinary reference list, but follow each reference with an annotation.

For more information on writing an Annotated Bibliography, see the guidelines set out by The Learning Centre, University of NSW: <https://student.unsw.edu.au/annotated-bibliography>.

For some guidance in writing about the work of other authors, consult the 'Referring to Sources' section of the Academic Phrasebank at the University of Manchester: <http://www.phrasebank.manchester.ac.uk/referring-to-sources/> See especially the sections 'Reference to what other writers do in their text: author as subject' and 'Reference to another writer's ideas or position (author as subject)' towards the bottom of the page.

Note: Your marker will be checking every reference and will be looking for common flaws such as copying and pasting from abstracts.

Assessment Criteria

This assignment will be marked using the following evaluation criteria:

1. The relevance of the sources reviewed
2. Evidence of appropriate critical thinking in their analysis
3. Clear, succinct and correct written expression
4. The proper formatting of the references according to the Harvard (author-date) referencing style.

2 Notes and Queries Journal

Assessment Type

Written Assessment

Task Description

Weighting: 50%

Length: 2500-3000 words (for the six assessable entries)

Details

Students are expected to keep a 'Notes and Queries' journal during term. The purpose of the N&Q journal is to provide you with an intellectual space where you can explore the concepts and ideas that are surveyed in this unit. As you listen to the weekly lectures, read the readings and engage with the assignment tasks, you are encouraged to jot down notes, questions, answers, problems, and anything else that springs to mind as a way of 'thinking out loud' about the unit material. The journal will thus become an important learning tool.

In addition to logging your thoughts and ideas in the Notes and Queries journal, you are also required to answer the discussion question provided on the unit Moodle site each week. In the first three weeks, as you become familiar with the unit material, these questions are not assessable. However, you may want to post your responses to the relevant discussion forum to check your learning and share your ideas with others. From weeks 4-11, all discussion questions are assessable, and you are required to submit six of your answers, of 400-500 words each, in Week 12 as the assessable component of your Notes and Queries journal. You are welcome to submit your entire journal if you choose: in this case, indicate which six answers you wish to be considered for assessment (e.g. simply write 'Assessment Piece' at the beginning of each answer).

Assessable component of Notes and Queries journal

The assessable component of the Notes & Queries journal is as follows:

1. Answer at least six of the weekly discussion questions chosen from weeks 4-11 as listed on the unit Moodle site;
2. Your answers must be thoughtfully considered and demonstrate evidence of reading and research, appropriately referenced;
3. Each answer should be 400-500 words long;
4. All six answers should be submitted for assessment as a single Word document through the Moodle site by the Friday of Week 12. If you are submitting your entire journal, clearly identify which answers you wish to be considered as part of this assessment (e.g. simply write 'Assessment Piece' at the beginning of each answer).

Bonus marks

You are encouraged to post your answers each week to the relevant Moodle discussion forum, and to respond to the posts of others. Students who provide evidence of engaging with the discussion forums and the posted Notes & Queries journal entries of others will receive an automatic 5% bonus marks for their Notes & Queries journal assessment.

How to write your journal entries

This is your journal and you can write in any style that suits you. It is fine to use the first-person (i.e. to say 'I', 'me', 'my' etc.). However, do keep in mind that what you write needs to be comprehensible to another reader (other students on the Moodle forums, as well as your marker), so use complete sentences and edit your work for typos and clarity of expression. You are expected to engage with written texts in your responses to the discussion questions (the set text, readings and any further research of your own, as well as the lectures and podcasts), and you will need to reference all sources you refer to appropriately.

Academic Integrity Statement

As a CQUniversity student you are expected to act honestly in all aspects of your academic work.

Any assessable work undertaken or submitted for review or assessment must be your own work. Assessable work is any type of work you do to meet the assessment requirements in the unit, including draft work submitted for review and feedback and final work to be assessed.

When you use the ideas, words or data of others in your assessment, you must thoroughly and clearly acknowledge the source of this information by using the correct referencing style for your unit. Using others' work without proper acknowledgement may be considered a form of intellectual dishonesty.

Participating honestly, respectfully, responsibly, and fairly in your university study ensures the CQUniversity qualification you earn will be valued as a true indication of your individual academic achievement and will continue to receive the respect and recognition it deserves.

As a student, you are responsible for reading and following CQUniversity's policies, including the Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure. This policy sets out CQUniversity's expectations of you to act with integrity, examples of academic integrity breaches to avoid, the processes used to address alleged breaches of academic integrity, and potential penalties.

What is a breach of academic integrity?

A breach of academic integrity includes but is not limited to plagiarism, self-plagiarism, collusion, cheating, contract cheating, and academic misconduct. The Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure defines what these terms mean and gives examples.

Why is academic integrity important?

A breach of academic integrity may result in one or more penalties, including suspension or even expulsion from the University. It can also have negative implications for student visas and future enrolment at CQUniversity or elsewhere. Students who engage in contract cheating also risk being blackmailed by contract cheating services.

Where can I get assistance?

For academic advice and guidance, the Academic Learning Centre \(ALC\) can support you in becoming confident in completing assessments with integrity and of high standard.

What can you do to act with integrity?

Be Honest

If your assessment task is done by someone else, it would be dishonest of you to claim it as your own

Seek Help

If you are not sure about how to cite or reference in essays, reports etc, then seek help from your lecturer, the library or the Academic Learning Centre (ALC)

Produce Original Work

Originality comes from your ability to read widely, think critically, and apply your gained knowledge to address a question or problem
