General Information

Overview
This unit introduces you to the discipline of human factors and how a knowledge of human strengths and limitations, both cognitive and physical, can lead to better safety outcomes. This unit addresses end-user design issues and human variability in occupational contexts. You will explore human factors principles and learn to assess human interaction concerns using a variety of human factors methods. You will also develop skills to make human factors design recommendations to enhance human performance.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from AUER Unit Evaluation Data

Feedback
Whilst no SUTE comments were made by students the feedback scores indicated that 'Useful Feedback' and 'Overall Satisfaction' were the two areas that can be improved for this unit.

Recommendation
It is recommended that the feedback given to students be enhanced for the next offering which may also increase the overall satisfaction scores.
