General Information

Overview

Both qualitative and quantitative research skills are highly sought after in many career paths. This unit builds upon Research Methods 1 (PSYC11012) to provide you with the knowledge and skills to conduct and appraise both qualitative and quantitative research in your university and/or professional careers in psychology. The unit will continue to build your skills in critiquing, designing, and analysing qualitative research. It will also further advance your skills related to designing quantitative research, including how to perform basic statistical analyses by hand and using industry-standard computer software. Students who are not confident in their mathematical abilities are encouraged to contact the Academic Learning Centre (ALC) to discuss 'refresher' options.

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Student feedback (SUTE)

More examples of how to perform statistical hand calculations would be useful in consolidating learning of concepts.

Recommendation

More hand calculation examples will be provided to students in future iterations of the unit.

Feedback

Being provided with working out templates for hand calculations, rather than requiring students to create these by hand, would enable students to spend more time to dedicate to learning concepts.

Recommendation

Templates for hand calculations will be provided to students in future iterations of the unit.

Feedback

Audio quality of lecture videos could be improved.

Recommendation

Lecture videos with sub-optimal audio will be re-recorded.

Feedback

The structure of the unit, how the content was assessed, and support material provided enabled students to feel at ease studying research methods.

Recommendation

Continue with the current framework for the unit, while continuing to make improvements according to students suggestions as they are communicated.
