

PSYC13021 Forensic Psychology

Term 2 - 2018

Profile information current as at 11/04/2024 06:54 am

All details in this unit profile for PSYC13021 have been officially approved by CQUniversity and represent a learning partnership between the University and you (our student). The information will not be changed unless absolutely necessary and any change will be clearly indicated by an approved correction included in the profile.

General Information

Overview

Forensic Psychology is the area of behavioural science concerned with psychology and the law. In this unit, you will discuss how psychological principles and practices can be applied to topics such as police recruitment and procedures, suspect interviewing, false confessions, courtroom practices and witness reliability, understanding criminal behaviour, mental competency, and justice. You will also discuss general psychological principles as they relate to the legal systems within Australia and other countries as well as specific case studies.

Attendance Requirements

All on-campus students are expected to attend scheduled classes – in some units, these classes are identified as a mandatory (pass/fail) component and attendance is compulsory. International students, on a student visa, must maintain a full time study load and meet both attendance and academic progress requirements in each study period (satisfactory attendance for International students is defined as maintaining at least an 80% attendance record).

Website

Assessment Grading

This is a graded unit: your overall grade will be calculated from the marks or grades for each assessment task, based on the relative weightings shown in the table above. You must obtain an overall mark for the unit of at least 50%, or an overall grade of 'pass' in order to pass the unit. If any 'pass/fail' tasks are shown in the table above they must also be completed successfully ('pass' grade). You must also meet any minimum mark requirements specified for a particular assessment task, as detailed in the 'assessment task' section (note that in some instances, the minimum mark for a task may be greater than 50%). Consult the University's Grades and Results Policy for more details of interim results and final grades.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Student feedback

Feedback

Humour: Large numbers of students commented on the lecturer's sense of humour and style of delivery.

Recommendation

Current approach to be continued.

Feedback

Group assignment: some students were unable to make contact with fellow students and this delayed starting the first assignment.

Recommendation

Group assignment instructions to be revised with contingency plans for when students do not engage with each other.

Feedback

Exam length: some students requested a longer exam (three hours instead of two) as it would allow an opportunity to display greater knowledge/depth of reading. However, most were happy with existing length.

Recommendation

Expectations of what is required in the exam will be reinforced during the teaching period.

Unit Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this unit, you will be able to:

1. Understand the philosophical similarities and differences underlying the disciplines of psychology and the legal system
2. Have a knowledge of the accomplishments of legal psychologists
3. Be aware of the particular challenges facing psychologists interacting with the legal system
4. Have further developed your research and writing skills.

Assessment Tasks

1 Offender profiling (Assessment 1)

Assessment Type

Group Discussion

Task Description

You will be assigned into a study group in Week 2. Each group will be asked to identify a single historical closed case (or sequence of cases involving the same offender/offenders), to collect and pool information on that case, and to then produce a single summary of that case (one submission per group).

Using journal articles, or books, and media reports, identify a solved case in which criminal offender profiling was used. Answer the following questions about that case:

1. Identify the case (offence type, location, year, etc).
2. What characteristics of the offender were identified? (e.g., race, age, etc).
3. Was the profile accurate? Which characteristics of the offender were accurately or inaccurately identified?
4. Was the profile useful in the investigation? Why/why not?

Your report, in its entirety, should be submitted on maximum of two A4 pages. The exact format is up to each student (within group differences in approach are permitted), with some possible options including: a standard essay; a Wikipedia-style page; a newspaper-style layout (e.g., multiple columns).

Further assessment details and rubric are available on Moodle.

2 How not to talk to children (Assessment 2)

Assessment Type

Written Assessment

Task Description

This assignment is based on an original study by Hughes and Grieve (1980) which attempted to show how children will try to make sense of any question, no matter how strange it may be. Children, aged 5 and 7, were asked "bizarre" or "conceptually ill-formed" questions like, "Is milk bigger than water?", and "Is red heavier than yellow?" Although these questions were apparently meaningless, the children would typically give answers. A similar related study was also carried out by Waterman, Blades and Spencer (2001).

The assignment requires you to conduct two interviews (with either a child and an adult, or two children) featuring a series of "bizarre" questions. You will then write a brief report (1500 words maximum) based on those interviews. The report should follow the conventions of a psychological report (Abstract, Introduction, Method, Results, Discussion, References, Appendix).

Instructions

1. Read the articles by Hughes and Grieve (1980) and Waterman et al. (2001).
2. Based on your reading, create two original "bizarre" questions. Add these to the list below to create a total of eight questions.

1. Q1. Is milk bigger than water? Why?
2. Q2. What do feet eat for breakfast? Why?
3. Q3. Is red heavier than yellow? Why?
4. Q4. One day there were two flies crawling up a wall. Which fly got to the top first? Why?
5. Q5 Is a jumper angrier than a tree? Why?
6. Q6. One day there were two people standing at a bus-stop. When the bus came along, who got on first? Why?
7. Q7. INSERT YOUR OWN QUESTION HERE
8. Q8. INSERT YOUR OWN QUESTION HERE

3. Identify two family members or friends (the person must be someone known to you) and ask them to participate in an interview study (tips for conducting the interviewing will be posted on Moodle).

4. Ask the series of 8 questions, recording the answers.

5. Once the questions are completed, thank the person interviewed and explain that the study was about how people are (usually) able to find meaning and give coherent reasoned answers to what are essentially meaningless questions.

Academic Integrity Statement

As a CQUniversity student you are expected to act honestly in all aspects of your academic work.

Any assessable work undertaken or submitted for review or assessment must be your own work. Assessable work is any type of work you do to meet the assessment requirements in the unit, including draft work submitted for review and feedback and final work to be assessed.

When you use the ideas, words or data of others in your assessment, you must thoroughly and clearly acknowledge the source of this information by using the correct referencing style for your unit. Using others' work without proper acknowledgement may be considered a form of intellectual dishonesty.

Participating honestly, respectfully, responsibly, and fairly in your university study ensures the CQUniversity qualification you earn will be valued as a true indication of your individual academic achievement and will continue to receive the respect and recognition it deserves.

As a student, you are responsible for reading and following CQUniversity's policies, including the Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure. This policy sets out CQUniversity's expectations of you to act with integrity, examples of academic integrity breaches to avoid, the processes used to address alleged breaches of academic integrity, and potential penalties.

What is a breach of academic integrity?

A breach of academic integrity includes but is not limited to plagiarism, self-plagiarism, collusion, cheating, contract cheating, and academic misconduct. The Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure defines what these terms mean and gives examples.

Why is academic integrity important?

A breach of academic integrity may result in one or more penalties, including suspension or even expulsion from the University. It can also have negative implications for student visas and future enrolment at CQUniversity or elsewhere. Students who engage in contract cheating also risk being blackmailed by contract cheating services.

Where can I get assistance?

For academic advice and guidance, the Academic Learning Centre \(ALC\) can support you in becoming confident in completing assessments with integrity and of high standard.

What can you do to act with integrity?

Be Honest

If your assessment task is done by someone else, it would be dishonest of you to claim it as your own

Seek Help

If you are not sure about how to cite or reference in essays, reports etc, then seek help from your lecturer, the library or the Academic Learning Centre (ALC)

Produce Original Work

Originality comes from your ability to read widely, think critically, and apply your gained knowledge to address a question or problem
