General Information

Overview

This unit provides you with an understanding of Australian society in an increasingly diverse and globalising world and how it has developed over time. It will examine how Australian history has helped to define Australian national identities. You will explore issues of power and social change and consider a range of social issues using sociological concepts. This will give you an understanding of the politico economic distribution of resources that shape social inequalities around culture, ethnicity, "race", gender and sexuality. You will develop an understanding of Australian Indigenous issues, processes of settlement and colonisation and multiculturalism and the implications of the globalisation of society. In this way the unit will be the basis for a professional career in human service and other workplaces.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from SUTE

Feedback

Students wanted more student engagement to be fostered in the unit.

Recommendation

The unit coordinator will pose questions on the discussion forum to encourage students to post to the Q&A discussion forum and to converse with other students to foster peer learning. Students will be encouraged to prepare and attend tutorials to share answers, compare viewpoints and build professional communication skills.

Feedback from SUTE

Feedback

Students prefer more visual learning resources.

Recommendation

To better support visual learners, more resources in the form of diagrams, tables and images will be used alongside written information.

Feedback from SUTE

Feedback

Students reported the lecturer was helpful.

Recommendation

Continued support will be provided to students with their assessments, and understanding of the sociological perspective and the sociological content of the unit. A weekly ZOOM consultation hour will be available for students to attend and talk with the unit coordinator.
