General Information

Overview

In this unit, you will examine the relationship between human services and the legal context in which they operate, with a focus on how law, statutory frameworks, and professional ethics intersect to inform legally accountable and ethical professional practice. The unit introduces the historical development and contemporary applications of statutory frameworks relevant to human service work in Australia, including their role in promoting human rights and socially just outcomes. You will analyse how the statutory framework informs the legal roles, responsibilities, and obligations of human service workers across a range of practice contexts, with particular attention to statutory authority, the ethical use of power, professional decision-making, and responses to the needs of marginalised groups.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from Student evaluation

Two lectures were difficult to engage with.

Recommendation

Review lectures to identify ways to increase student engagement.

Feedback

The unit Moodle site was easy to navigate, and there was a great range of resources. I was surprised at my enjoyment of this subject.

Recommendation

Retain the Moodle site format and the interactive elements of Assessments 1 and 2, and continually review and update unit resources.
