General Information

Overview

The world continues to change rapidly in ways that affect well-being, social and economic development and the natural environment. In this unit, you will explore the causes, patterns, trends and localised impacts of major global changes, including population growth, migration, urbanisation, globalisation, socio-economic inequality and environmental change. You will investigate linkages between these changes and sustainability and adapt your thinking to new contexts in a changing world.

Previous Student Feedback

Feedback, Recommendations and Responses

Every unit is reviewed for enhancement each year. At the most recent review, the following staff and student feedback items were identified and recommendations were made.

Feedback from UC self-assessment.

Feedback

Continue emphasizing the integration of sustainable development in BA education to enhance students' understanding of its relevance to their majors and careers.

Recommendation

The unit coordinator will continue to update the learning materials and enhance the delivery of the unit by incorporating discipline-specific examples and case studies into assessments, explicitly linking sustainability principles to students' majors and minors. This will help students better understand how sustainability applies to their fields of study and its practical relevance to future academic and professional pathways.
