General Information

Overview

In an increasingly competitive global tourism market, planners, destination management organisations and industry stakeholders are being challenged to provide services for tourists whilst maintaining a unique brand, character and competitive advantage for the destination. This unit is designed as a capstone to the preceding units in the Master of Sustainable Tourism Management course. It draws in the knowledge gained from the core introductory, environmental, economic, marketing and socio-cultural units to critically consider how to sustainably manage destinations through developing in students an advanced understanding of destination governance, branding, sustainable planning and management.

Term Specific Information

Welcome to TOUR20022 Destination Planning and Management. This unit draws together many of the issues that have been discussed during the course and is designed to give you skills and knowledge to critically consider the key issues that are involved with sustainable tourism destination planning. The unit includes a field trip where you will be able to observe first hand many of the key issues that need to be considered in destination planning.

Assessment Tasks

1 Case study: The scales of tourism planning in a city destination

Assessment Type

Written Assessment

Task Description

Tourism planning is conducted by a range of actors across a range of scales in tourism cities. At the site scale, tourism (and non-tourism) businesses are responsible for planning (or non-planning) activities that directly influence the experience of tourists. At one end of the site scale is the tourist experience of a cafe while the other end of the scale could be an integrated resort such as Atlantis the Palm in Dubai. At the destination scale, local governments or other government organisations are usually responsible for the management, planning and marketing of a place, but decision making is often disjointed because of the range of public and private sector organisations that have various planning requirements (eg fire service, local government planning ordinances, electricity providers and communications services). In a similar manner, planning at a regional scale is often disjointed because of conflicting priorities between local governments, the private sector and state and national governments. In Queensland for example, the mining industry would like to expand coal mining operations but at the cost of some damage to the Great Barrier Reef through dredging.

Using the example of a tourist city familiar to you, conduct a critical case study to identify six key issues for tourism development and planning. You are to identify two key issues at the site scale, two at the destination scale and two at the regional scale. Drawing on theories discussed in this unit, justify why these issues are significant and demonstrate how planning can be used to overcome these problems.

Distance students are to identify a suitable destination and discuss their selection with the lecture prior to the field trip.

This assessment is to be written in essay format and should include subheadings where appropriate. There is no need for an Executive Summary. Word count: no more than 2500 words excluding references.

2 Field trip report: Destination Development

Assessment Type

Practical and Written Assessment

Task Description

Field trip report: Destination development

In assignment 1 you identified a range of planning issues that are affecting the destination you considered. Drawing on assignment 1 and from the lecture material in this unit, your readings and your notes and observations on the walking tour field trip, write a field trip report that critically examines the current product mix in the destination and make recommendations for further development of the destination. You should consider the implications of your suggestions from a triple bottom line perspective. Identify what key businesses and/or services you think need to be encouraged to be established in the destination and provide suggestions on where these may be located and who should be responding for their funding. For example you may identify the need for additional CBD parking, pedestrian malls and more signage. Who should fund this, the local government authority or private sector investors?

3 Destination Management Plan Brief

Assessment Type

Presentation and Written Assessment

Task Description

Individual Presentation: Destination Management Plan Brief

Imagine you are a planner employed by a Destination Management Organisation (DMO) such as a local council. You are seeking tenders for a five-year Destination Management Plan (DMP) and have called a meeting of interested consultants to invite them to tender for the DMP.

You have 15 minutes to give an overview of the destination, the type of development projects that you anticipate may occur within the next five years (new hotels for example), problems that you expect the consultants to consider (for example climate change, change in demand and access issues), some examples of other DMPs you think are worth looking at and what you expect the DMP to contain as a final document.

You will need to prepare a two-page brief as a handout to be given out at the time of your presentation. The brief should contain all relevant information and references.

You are to present the brief using power point.

Distance students will present via zoom discussion with lecturer. Distance students should discuss their preferred destination for this assessment with the lecturer by week 7.

Academic Integrity Statement

As a CQUniversity student you are expected to act honestly in all aspects of your academic work.

Any assessable work undertaken or submitted for review or assessment must be your own work. Assessable work is any type of work you do to meet the assessment requirements in the unit, including draft work submitted for review and feedback and final work to be assessed.

When you use the ideas, words or data of others in your assessment, you must thoroughly and clearly acknowledge the source of this information by using the correct referencing style for your unit. Using others' work without proper acknowledgement may be considered a form of intellectual dishonesty.

Participating honestly, respectfully, responsibly, and fairly in your university study ensures the CQUniversity qualification you earn will be valued as a true indication of your individual academic achievement and will continue to receive the respect and recognition it deserves.

As a student, you are responsible for reading and following CQUniversity's policies, including the Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure. This policy sets out CQUniversity's expectations of you to act with integrity, examples of academic integrity breaches to avoid, the processes used to address alleged breaches of academic integrity, and potential penalties.

What is a breach of academic integrity?

A breach of academic integrity includes but is not limited to plagiarism, self-plagiarism, collusion, cheating, contract cheating, and academic misconduct. The Student Academic Integrity Policy and Procedure defines what these terms mean and gives examples.

Why is academic integrity important?

A breach of academic integrity may result in one or more penalties, including suspension or even expulsion from the University. It can also have negative implications for student visas and future enrolment at CQUniversity or elsewhere. Students who engage in contract cheating also risk being blackmailed by contract cheating services.

Where can I get assistance?

For academic advice and guidance, the Academic Learning Centre \(ALC\) can support you in becoming confident in completing assessments with integrity and of high standard.

What can you do to act with integrity?

Be Honest

If your assessment task is done by someone else, it would be dishonest of you to claim it as your own

Seek Help

If you are not sure about how to cite or reference in essays, reports etc, then seek help from your lecturer, the library or the Academic Learning Centre (ALC)

Produce Original Work

Originality comes from your ability to read widely, think critically, and apply your gained knowledge to address a question or problem
